

Lee County Board amends formula for pay hikes

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

The Lee County Board today tackled the Finance Committee-submitted budget for next year and at presstime had amended the formula for paying the suggested pay increases to employees and rejected two requested amendments from Sheriff Ray Nehring.

When Ernest Norden, District 1, chairman, Finance Committee, rose to present the budget to the board, he complimented Sharon Thompson, county treasurer, for the money she has earned for the county by investing taxes collected until they are paid out to various taxing agencies. "Without her help in gaining this new source of revenue, the budget would look worse than it does," commented Norden.

The committee recommended each full-time county employee, except appointed or elected officials, be given a $5 per month increase and a raise of not more than 4 per cent of their present salary.

The formula was changed to permit each department head to distribute pay raises to employees under his direction as he chooses so long as the total amount does not exceed the amount allotted for pay increases.

Robert Roiland, administrator of the county nursing home, asked permission to distribute the pay according to the board adopted merit pay program for the nursing home at the August 1974 meeting of the board.

After the board voted to permit Roiland to distribute the nursing home pay raises according to the adopted plan, other elected officials protested they should be given the same privilege.

Finally a motion by David Gusse, District 1, was adopted which gave all department heads the latitude in distributing pay raises which was given the nursing home administrator.

Sheriff Ray Nehring requested an additional $2,500 in his budget for a radio to be used in a crime lab van. On a 21 to 6 vote the board rejected the proposal.

Nehring then informed the board he has been granted permission under the federal emergency training act to employ two persons at no cost to the county until at least June 30, 1976. If the program is not extended by the government after June 30, the cost of employing the men would be paid by the county if they are kept on the payroll.

The suggestion was rejected on a voice vote. The board accepted a recommendation from the Zoning Board of Appeals the fees for building permits be raised and the fees for rezoning petitions also be increased.

A building permit fee will be $5 plus 50 cents for each $500 of improvement costs up to a maximum of $100.

The fee for petitions to rezone property is raised from $10 to $35.

A proposal was received from Rock River Disposal Co. to pick up refuse at the Courthouse twice a week for $18 per month and to provide refuse service at the nursing home three days per week for $40 per month.

The bids were referred to the County Property Committee for the Courthouse and to the Health and Welfare Committee for the nursing home with direction other bids be obtained.

Robert Burrs, District 3, chairman, County Property Committee, said Rock River Disposal had picked up refuse at the Courthouse but his service was discontinued because it could be obtained for a cheaper price.

Lowell Beggs, District 1, chairman, Health and Welfare Committee, reported the same circumstances for the nursing home refuse service.

Board Chairman Irvin Koch, District 2, made two appointments of commissioners for drainage districts. Marvin L. Squire was named to the Inlet Swamp Drainage District and William Bower was reappointed to the Union District 1 Harmon and Marion Drainage District.

The garage at the Gavin Spangler residence, 803 Fourth Ave., has been decorated with a Bicentennial mural. The mural has the Liberty Bell, the dates 1776-1976 and the 13-star flag along with the 50-star flag. Spangler painted the mural himself. He said it was his first attempt at such a project. Spangler is Americanism chairman for the 13th District of the American Legion. A note of coincidence, the Spangler telephone number ends in the numbers 76. (Telegraph Photo)

Appraiser of Nixon papers found guilty

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal court jury today found literary appraiser Ralph G. Newman guilty of lying about the date Richard Nixon gave his vice presidential papers to the nation to claim an illegal $450,000 tax break.

The U. S. District Court jury deliberated nearly five hours before returning the verdict to Judge Frank J. McGarr.

Newman, 64, a Lincoln scholar and president of the Chicago Library Board, was accused of lying to the Internal Revenue Service about his appraisal of the Nixon documents.

Newman displayed little emotion when the jury delivered its guilty verdict on two counts of providing false information to IRS agents.

Family members, however, were visibly upset.

Newman was released on personal recognizance bond and sentencing was set by McGarr for Jan. 6.

Maximum penalties on each count are a $10,000 fine and five years in prison.

The government accused Newman of participating in a scheme to backdate the date of Nixon's gift to the National Archives in an attempt to skirt provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1969. The law disallowed tax deductions on such donations.

Newman made no statement as he left the courtroom.

William McDaniels, his attorney, said, however, "We obviously received the verdict with great sadness." He said no decision has been made whether to appeal.

Malpractice suit asks $1.5 million

OREGON — Damages of $1.5 million are being sought in a malpractice suit filed here against Donald Hinderliter, a Rochelle physician, and Rochelle Community Hospital.

The suit was filed by Ernest Kirchman on behalf of his son, Patrick, 1½ years old at the time of the alleged occurrence on Oct. 27, 1973.

The suit alleges the boy was under Hinderliter's care for treatment of a urinary-tract infection and suffered permanent damage as a result of ill-treatment. The doctor is charged, in the suit, with failing to properly diagnose the illness; failing to catheterize, failing to conduct a thorough examination and failing to do follow-up care on the patient. Damages of $750,000 are sought against Hinderliter with a like amount sought against the hospital in a second count.

The suit accuses hospital personnel of failing, through its medical staff, to review treatment given to the boy and allowing improper medical care for the boy. A jury trial was demanded.

Both defendants have 30 days in which to file their answer to the complaint.

U.N. vote on Zionism denounced, but . . . Reaction should be kept within limits: Kissinger PITTSBURGH (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said today the United Nations vote equating Zionism with racism "was extremely unhelpful and highly irresponsible" in efforts to bring lasting peace to the Middle East.

However, Kissinger said, "we have to keep the American reaction in some bounds."

In reply to questions at a news conference here, Kissinger said: "We went through a period in which the United Nations was described as the best hope of humanity. That was exaggerated."

"We must now not swing to the other extreme of not realizing some of the benefits that the U.N., with all of its failings, still has for the United States."

Kissinger said the administration has not decided on any specific course of action. He pointed out that, with the large number of countries voting for the U.N. resolution on Zionism, a decision by the United States to apply economic sanctions would amount to a major change in U.S. foreign policy.

However, he added, "a continuation of these votes must have an impact on our bilateral and multilateral relations."

Kissinger said the U.S. efforts in the United Nations for political amnesty throughout the world are unrelated to U.N. moves against Israel.

On another subject, Kissinger promised to work closely with Donald Rumsfeld, designated by President Ford to be the new secretary of defense.

"One thing we cannot afford," Kissinger said, "is this constant bickering between our senior officials."

His remarks supported the view that Ford fired James R. Schlesinger as Pentagon chief partly because of strong differences with Kissinger.

Kissinger made these additional points:

—The administration is still studying an Egyptian proposal to reconvene the Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East and remains "open-minded" about what steps to take next in the quest for peace.

—Chairman Mao's health does not affect U.S. relations with China, which Ford will visit next month.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey is putting together a complex proposal involving higher city sales taxes, boosts in taxes on corporations and banks, and aid from banks and the federal government for the city.

Mayor Abraham D. Beame said Tuesday that an additional 8,374 employees will be trimmed from the city's payroll by June 30 as part of a plan to cut $200.7 million from the city's expense budget. About 35,800 of the city's 315,000 jobs have been lost as of Oct. 31 through layoffs and attrition this year, according to city officials.

In addition to Federal Reserve Board Chairman Burns, House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona indicated he was shifting his view.

Crash fatal to Dixon cyclist

A youthful Dixon motorcyclist died Tuesday evening from injuries he received when his bike collided with a car.

Police reports indicate Terence J. Voss, 18, 901 N. Dixon Ave., was riding west in the 300 block of West Everett Street when a car driven by Betty L. Norton, 46, James Trailer Court, pulled out of a service station into the path of Voss's motorcycle. The bike struck the right-front fender of Norton's car, then bounced into the east-bound lane of Everett St., where it struck the left-front fender of a car driven by Renee K. Galor, 18, Rt. 2.

Upon the impact the youth was thrown under the fender of Galor's vehicle and the motorcycle came to rest on the lawn at 318 Everett St.

The mishap occurred at 5:15 p.m. Voss was rushed to KSB Hospital by the emergency vehicle of the Dixon Fire Department. He died shortly after he was admitted to the hospital.

Norton was issued a traffic ticket by Dixon Police for failing to yield at a private drive.

Voss was born July 27, 1927, at Rockford, the son of Dr. Jerome and Patricia (Clarke) Voss, and had been employed by National Manufacturing Company, Sterling.

His father, maternal grandparents and paternal grandfather preceded him in death.

Survivors include his mother; a twin brother, Thomas, at home; and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Gertrude Voss, Chicago.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 9:30 p.m. in Jones Funeral Home and at 10 a.m. in St. Anne's Catholic Church with the Rev. John Reuland, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Oakwood Cemetery. Visitation will be after 2 p.m. Thursday at the funeral home, where the wake service will be at 8 p.m.

A memorial has been established.

GEORGE WALLACE

Wallace officially throws hat in ring

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) Gov. George C. Wallace, billing himself as "the people's choice," officially announced his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination today with scorn for his party's leadership and a promise of an active campaign in the 1976 primaries.

"It is time we offer that great middle class someone they can vote for and not against. With your help, that is what I shall do during this campaign," the wheelchair-bound Wallace said.

He said the "average middle class citizen" has been ignored by the national Democratic party and "is fed up and has been voting against the far left positions of the national party nominees and platforms."

Wallace said that in the past "the national Democratic party has allowed itself to be taken over by the exotic left." He vowed an active primary campaign to alter the party hierarchy and win the nomination. Aides said the only primary he probably would not take part in would be the first in the nation, New Hampshire.

"I am, in my opinion and as supported by many of the polls, the leading candidate for this nomination," the partially paralyzed governor said as he formally launched his fourth race for the White House.

Wallace recalled two of his earlier campaigns and their slogans — "Stand Up For America" in 1968, and "Send Them A Message" in 1972. "Now, in 1976," he said, "we ask for 'Trust In The People' and let's put some people leadership in the Democratic party ... and some people leadership in the White House in Washington."

"Let's win the presidency in 1976 by offering the people's choice as the nominee of 'the Democratic party.'"

Wallace's remarks were in a prepared statement on his candidacy that followed a Tuesday night strategy session with some 300 Wallace organizers.

Nature puts on a sky show

A Telegraph photographer noticed these unique cloud patterns Tuesday afternoon in the skies over Dixon. The dark-gray clouds which rolled through the area had a unique wavy effect, almost like inverted waves on a lake. The scene was over Dixon Airport. Good productivity report

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

The Labor Department is reporting a fact so important in our national welfare that it's a pity it is buried in the news. The neglected fact is productivity.

Productivity is the output per man-hour. The Labor Department measured the gain or loss in the private sector of our economy, which excludes the government sector. This is the engine in the American economy. The government sector is the merciless drag.

In the September quarter, our American workers' productivity took the largest leap in more than four years. The volume of output per man-hour soared at an annual rate of 9.5 per cent! Literally, we have no real future without this turnaround.

Output per man-hour in the United States over the last 10 years increased at an average rate of 2.1 per cent, the smallest increase of any of the 11 leading industrialized nations. Average hourly compensation per U.S. worker increased a full six per cent across those years.

In fact, in the past 10 years, U.S. wages have shot up twice as fast as the output per man-hour.

As a result, U.S. unit labor costs increased 3.9 per cent each year. This rate was higher than in any of the other 10 industrialized nations except Canada. Japan's rate was less than one per cent.

The accompanying result is that our American manufacturers have been pricing themselves out of the world markets. And only greater productivity can protect the American dollar. But, astoundingly, the American workman today is producing $100 worth of goods in a given time while his West German counterpart is producing $74 worth and a Japanese $56 worth.

Moreover, one of the reasons that our dollar won't do as much for people is because our people won't do as much for a dollar. In the long run, only greater output per man-hour can pay for increased wages. Anything short of this simply increases everybody's cost of living.

The fundamental problem is that the government is spending far too much for the amount of wealth generated by the private sector of the American economy. The government is not only living beyond its own income, but beyond ours as well.

Our government does not meet urgent social needs by economy and good fiscal management. It meets them by debt. And how much government overspending and debt we Americans can stand is the standing question.

It is an old rule of political spending that what goes up must go down further. Marvelous H. L. Mencken, the Baltimore editorialist, once wrote: "For every problem there is a solution: simple, neat and wrong."

And too often the political overspenders' solutions are like a man who buys an automobile, sells the wheels to buy gasoline and still insists that the thing will run. But it is utterly ridiculous to deny the relationship between always spending beyond income and inflation—air forced into the balloon—and bust.

Everything in the material world has a cost that must be paid. Nothing is free. The Washington government is not a source of wealth. Most politicians, making their political hay, merely try to make it seem so. They have the gall to pretend that the government gives us something for nothing. That's the Big Lie all over again.

Any government is a spender, not an earner. Everything a government says it will give the people it must first take away from the people. And only greater output for man-hour in the private sector of our economy can meet the taxes that the politicians put on our backs.

We're the victims of a whole cabala of news that confuses us: a nightmarish complex maze so downbeat and crisis-laden that it often defies comprehension. We're so used to bad news that we seem hardly able to realize good news when we see it.

But the Labor Department's report of this increased productivity is fundamental. It turns the invisible corner which separates the area of possible developments into actual developments. It is good news of the most heartening kind.

Another 'night' massacre

By BOYD LEWIS

I once stood at the scene where Neville Chamberlain of England and Edouard Daladier of France sold out Czechoslovakia to Adolf Hitler of Germany in 1938 in a vain bid for European peace. Even seven years after that pitiful descent to diplomatic depths the stench of appeasement still hung in the air.

Some of that odor pervades Washington today in the wake of President Ford's "Sunday Night Massacre" at the American defense establishment.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who seems to see himself as the reincarnation of Metternich and Machiavelli, is beginning to look more like Neville Chamberlain, the man with the umbrella in the classic cartoon of capitulation to dictators.

Like Winston Churchill, who warned against Chamberlain's policy of appeasing Hitler, Secretary of Defense James E. Schlesinger is now on the outside of government for insisting on keeping America's guard up in the face of Kissinger's desire to propitiate the Russians.

Viewing the manner in which the "massacre" was carried out—with him to go junketing around the country, neglecting his serious tasks and risking his person.

The removal of Kissinger's "other hat" as head of the National Security Agency is a magician's "hat trick" which fools nobody. Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who will take over NSA, is Kissinger's loyal aide. This is a change without substance. The rejection of Schlesinger is a change with real substance which gravely dilutes the brain power and dedication devoted to the country's defense.

Mr. Ford has shown he goes all the way with Kissinger. Kissinger in opposing Schlesinger has shown he is ready to venture a dangerous distance to appease the Soviets.

In a television interview just before the news of his dismissal broke, Schlesinger was asked why he persisted in the face of administration opposition. He replied: "Because some day someone will ask, 'Why were we not warned?' and I will be able to say, 'Indeed you were!'"

How ironic if Gerald Ford turns out to have been so avid for an elected presidency that he fumbled a major crisis in his caretaker rule.

The firing of William E. Colby as head of the Central Intelligence Agency is a trivial sidelight. Colby had to go eventually, not because of the mistakes of the CIA he inherited from past directors, but because he became too cravenly cooperative with congressional probers and let too much light into his shadowy operations.

That the President should have lumped the dismissal of Colby with that of Schlesinger argues that his sense of public relations in this case is no keener than that which permits

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—In recent days a reader dropped off a copy of The Telegraph published 28 years ago, in 1948.

A microfilm containing all issues of The Telegraph from the beginning in 1851 to date, except for the years 1860 to 1864, is available to us anytime we get an urge to look back.

However, there is something about looking over a copy of a newspaper which was published sometime back, but which is within our memory, that is a nostalgic experience which microfilm searching cannot match.

That day in November in 1948 The Telegraph informed readers the first blast of winter had hit the West and was headed for the Midwest.

—That a recount of votes in Ohio in the presidential election might be forthcoming. Harry Truman that year scored what most people thought was an upset victory over New York's Tom Dewey. Truman took Ohio with a paper-thin margin and subsequent history recorded that state stayed in his column.

—That 15 war criminals were hanged in Munich, Germany, which brought to 73 the number hanged for wartime murders of concentration camp prisoners and American soldiers.

On Page One, the newspaper launched a survey in an attempt to get readers to comment on whether advertising carried in its pages can be improved and how.

An historical story that day recalled in 1860 a "fearful tornado" swept from Harmon Township, northeasterly, causing great damage.

A story appeared which told Ogle County officials were seeking a couple who were believed to have seen the murderer of a tavern operator before he was slain.

The Telegraph editorially commented that day concerning Truman's victory: "It was an unprecedented contest in several respects, and not the least of these is the fact that apparently only one man in high position in the country sincerely believed that the President could be elected. That was the President himself, and he was right."

The announced topic for the Mothers' Study Club was "What Effect Movies Have on Our Children." The club today would more likely be pondering what effect television is having on their children.

New corn bid that day was $1.24½ and the soybean quote was $2.60.

Five movies were billed for the city's then two theaters and all of them would not have even needed to be graded PG. The titles were: Man-Eater of Kumaon; Deep Waters; The Luck of the Irish; Manhattan Angel, and Black Eagle.

Being published on Friday, the 1948 issue carried no grocery advertising. However, it did inform readers Vaile Clothiers had overcoats priced from $35 to $39.50; that Eichler's had hats on sale for $3.98 and Bowman's offered a Belmont black kid shoe for women for $16.95.

Oh yes, on the back page: U.S. speeds rations to hungry China cities.

Well, that was the way it was one day 28 years ago.

Our excesses may cure us

By IRA BERKOW

Will Durant won't say for certain what this world is coming to, but he is willing to give us a few hints.

For one thing, he sees the possibility of the United States losing first-class status to Russia, China and Brazil.

Durant also sees this country in the process of decay, reminiscent of the Holy Roman Empire.

Yet he knows of the shifting of epochs and how America may yet achieve stability: "it may cure itself by its own excess."

Durant, who is 90 years old, has spent a lifetime telling us what once was so—that we may be prepared for what might be. He and his wife, Ariel, have just published "The Age of Napoleon," the eleventh volume of their Story of Civilization series.

"It is interesting to observe the condition of the Roman Empire in about 160 A.D., after it had reached its height and was beginning to crumble," said Durant, by telephone from his Los Angeles home. "For that period very much resembles ours."

"The similarities are great wealth, great freedom, loss of religious faith and an overextension of worldwide avenues of commitment."

"Our great wealth has made us narrow in our outlook, and we are overly considered with acquisitions. Thinking becomes an unnecessary luxury."

"Wealth leads to freedom, but freedom is an awfully difficult business. And freedom without intelligence—without thought—becomes chaos."

"Our moral code has withered. Once, we had an all-seeing, rewarding and punishing deity. He set limits for us because we feared him. Now we are unbounded—and humankind needs discipline to survive."

"So there is also a breakdown of the family structure. There is a terrible uprootedness. And perhaps that, with no god to keep us in tow and the insecurity of loss of family, we grow more violent. And modern science has helped our means of pugnacity, which is very great today."

And yet, said Durant, better times may be right around the corner, relatively speaking, like in 50 or 60 years.

"History has been filled with alternation of pagan and puritan epochs," he said. "The religiousness of the old Greek and Roman ways ended with the dissolution of the Holy Roman Empire. That gave way to the Puritanism of Medieval Christianity, which ended in the more pagan-like Renaissance, which turned again into a more Puritanical epoch."

"People get sick of the excesses of one style of life and they are drawn to the opposite style. That is why I say that America may cure itself by its own excesses."

Durant advises that the United States, like the Roman Empire which extended throughout Europe and great chunks of Asia, may be biting off more than it can chew. It is eating up its resources and thinning its blood while, at the same time, trying to keep the "blood vessels"—the protection of the great oceans—open for our commerce.

"The resources and the types of governments of Russia, China and Brazil—with their easy access to cheap labor—may be instrumental in making them the great powers of the future, and reducing America to second-class status. It won't be so bad, I don't think. We'll survive fine. Just as I'm sure Britain will, after it adjusts to going from a first-class power to second class."

Durant says he is no pessimist, only a realist. "I am a descendant of a monkey," he said, "and I've never quite recovered from that. And so I understand the instincts that we suffer from—violent pugnacity, limitless acquisition, indomitable sexual desire—that are all so powerful in our blood."

"And considering that, I think we are doing pretty well. Any civilization that can produce a Christ, a Moses, a Plato, a Spinoza, a Shakespeare, a Beethoven—well, it can't be all bad."

"And then I think of the good and fine people I've known through the years, the many fair, generous, just and loving people. And I think after all that we'll work ourselves out of this mess. At age 90, I can say that I have lost my faith in the wickedness of mankind."

Couple united in marriage

ROCHELLE — St. Patrick's Catholic Church was the setting for the recent wedding of Miss Karen Ann Fenwick and Spencer Lee Hayden, both of Rochelle. Parents of the couple are Mrs. Lullus Fenwick, Amboy, and the late Mr. Fenwick and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Hayden, Elfrida, Ariz.

A single bouquet of garden gathered flowers in pastel shades of blue, pink, green and yellow graced the altar for the afternoon double ring ceremony officiated by the Rev. Francis Kennedy. Paul Snyder, brother-in-law of the groom, gave the readings. Nuptial organist was Mrs. Scott Anderson and Miss Brenda Patzner was the soloist.

The bride wore a floor-length gown fashioned of ivory satepeau with seed pearls and re-embroidered lace on the bodice and sleeves. The same trim highlighted her A-line skirt which flowed into a chapel train. She carried a bouquet of white Butterfly roses, stephanotis, baby's breath, variegated ivy, plumosis and fresh fern.

Miss Joyce Fenwick, Normal, was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Larry Reinhard, McHenry, Miss Theresa Fenwick, DeKalb and Miss Kathy Fenwick, Rochelle. The attendants were attired in floor-length knit gowns with matching jackets in rainbow colors of mint green, pink, blue and yellow. Their hats matched their outfits and each carried an arm bouquet of daisies, carnations, asters, baby's breath and variegated foliage with knots of satin and lace ribbon in complementary colors.

Serving as junior bridesmaid was Miss Julie Snyder,

Phoenix, Ariz., and Miss Kristi Fenwick, Rochelle, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. They wore identically styled yellow and green dresses with halos of flowers in their hair. The flower girl also carried a wicker basket filled with an assortment of garden petals.

Best man was Scott Anderson, Rochelle. Groomsmen were Tom Fenwick, Chana, Mike Cassidy and Bill Wilkinson, Rochelle. Junior groomsmen were Scott Garland, DeKalb. Guests were seated by Buck and Steve Fenwick, Amboy, and Ted Wilkinson, Rochelle. Derek Holm, a nephew of the bride from McHenry, passed out program booklets with Mark and Mike Snyder, nephews of the groom from Phoenix, Ariz.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Rochelle Country Club.

The new Mrs. Hayden is a graduate of Rochelle Township High School and Western Illinois University, Macomb. She presently teaches at Kings grade school.

Mr. Hayden, also a graduate of Rochelle Township High School, graduated from Arizona State University and is self-employed in the real estate appraisal business.

The couple is making their first home in Rochelle.

Office giggler needs understanding, not criticism

Dear Ann Landers: You've heard of gumpoppers, knuckle crackers, hummers and such, but our office has something that beats them all. A giggler. And it's driving us nuts.

This woman giggles when she says hello or goodbye. If you ask her what time it is, she giggles. Every sentence begins with a "tee-hee-hee-hee" — a high-pitched, nerve-jangling sound that drives you out of your skin.

What is wrong with a person who laughs when nothing is funny? How can we let her know she's getting on our nerves? Any suggestions you have will be greatly appreciated. — At Wit's End

Dear Wit's: People who laugh when nothing is funny are tense and unsure of themselves. That Giggling Gertie in your office is an insecure, maladjusted woman who needs understanding, not criticism. Of course it's annoying, but once you become aware that her giggling is an outlet for nervous tension and that the poor girl is a bit of a case, your irritation should be reduced considerably.

Dear Ann Landers: Help! I have not only been mumbling to myself these last few weeks, but I've been talking right out loud. Does this mean I am going crazy? Please tell me. I need to know.

While at the neighborhood laundromat last week I was trying to forget my weightier problems by concentrating on the job at hand. I announced in a loud voice, "I'll put these in here and this goes over there."

I was all alone. The sound of my own voice gave me a real scare. Please tell me the truth, Ann. If I'm cracking up I don't want to be the last to know.

Should I see psychiatric help? Thanks for your guidance. — Worried About Myself

Dear Worried: Calm down, lady. You sound perfectly normal to me. Everyone talks to himself at some time or another. I find it very helpful, as a matter of fact, especially when I'm in a hurry. I tell myself, "Take it easy — slow down!" And it really works!

Dear Ann Landers: Five years ago I buried my husband. Our children think he was a saint. I never let them know what heartache he caused me.

In the 20 years we were married he had at least seven affairs that I knew of. One young woman came to see me and wanted to know if I would give him his freedom so he could marry her. When I confronted him he said she was crazy and had imagined the whole thing. Now I'm going with a man who would like to marry me, but his wife is a devout Catholic and won't give him a divorce. He spends four out of five nights with me at my apartment and my children think it is scandalous.

Yesterday my daughter said, "What would Dad say if he knew you were living like this?" I came very close to telling her the truth about her father. I feel if she and her brother knew what kind of a rat he was, they'd be more understanding. Should I tell them? — My Turn For Happiness

Dear Your Turn: Don't tarnish your husband's halo in an attempt to justify your own behavior. It would be a rotten thing to do. You were a noble woman to protect him. Keep that skeleton in the closet where it belongs.

The fur business is doing well

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

More women are coming to grips with the realities of conservation, which accounts for the "boom" in the fur industry. They can sell everything they make, says Robert Landau, 35, of Montreal, whose company is one of the largest manufacturers of fur garments in the world.

For six years the fur business has been steadily rising, and in the last year or so there has been a big spurt in the American and European markets, he says.

Acceptance by young people has helped spur the industry to "new fashion heights," he explained. There are tweedies, minks, classic trench coats, flattened fox, no-mat furs and so forth.

"Many had begun wearing imitation furs in a proconservation protest, but they began to realize that the fibers and dyes used in fake furs pose a major threat to the environment as they pollute streams and lakes.

"Then, too, there have been the much publicized results of what happens when you try to protect some animals and cause overpopulation. For example, when a bounty was put on mountain lions to protect deer, the deer defoliated everything they could find in their quest for food and they starved anyway. It all must be ecologically balanced by nature," he maintains.

There has been a lot of misunderstanding, too, about the harvesting of seals, Landau insists. Herds are increasing because the crop of seals that is handled by industry is harvested under government supervision and split by four countries — the United States, Russia, Canada and Japan.

"We have never handled an endangered species — such as otter from South America or Florida. In fact, nobody handles it."

At the moment there is an overabundance of squirrels and ermine, fashion furs of the '20s. Ditto muskrat and raccoon. Ninety-nine per cent of ranch mink is raised, he maintains. The Canadian government's Trade and Commerce Department has made a study of Canadian wildlife and it tallies the harvest each year and whether furs are underharvested or

In 18 years, Landau has worked his way up from the stock room to the presidency of Grosvenor Canada and has five youthful designers — their average age is 30, the head designer is 44 — who have "styled some beautiful things," dispelling the notion that "everybody in the fur business is old." He doesn't believe, though, that a good company must put a name designer label in a coat to sell it, even though his company has used some of the great names — Hartnell, Cardin, Heim — in the past. He would rather the company stand behind the product with quality and fashion.

"New ideas in fashion are an important part of the fur business. Tweedie mink — light and dark brown mink — are sewn together for a sporty, tweedy slim-line look that requires 10 miles of thread in each coat," he says.

Fox is being "flattened" so that it is no longer as bulky, unflattering look, and one coat made of lynx weighs under two pounds. Some furs are worked in a way that keeps them from matting in the rain. A classic trench coat is sheared seal with a lynx collar. "The seals are part of the harvest made for the U.S. government — revenue of the pelts goes back into the U.S. economy.

"That plain trench coat could not have been sold years ago when furs were styled with classic wide collars, big sleeves and great fullness. Some furs, such as red fox, were considered low forms of life then, but now are popular because they are interestingly worked," he contends.

Another thing going for furs is the new longer line which makes furs look better, he says.

"Furs are flattering, practical and inexpensive, especially when compared price-wise with some of the suede and leather coats that sell for more. You can pay $2,500 for a fine suede coat. I am told, but a fine chinchilla jacket retails for $2,500 — $10,000 once would have been considered a low price for chinchilla. A good Alaskan seal coat may be $2,000.

"More men are wearing fur coats, especially raccoon and ranch raised nutria, and there seems to be no reason why nutria shouldn't be harvested — after all, it is basically like a water rat," he explained.

When you use two-bids in diamonds, hearts and spades as weak bids you retain two clubs to cover normal forcing bids in all four suits. In addition, you suddenly develop a valuable by-product. You find that your two-club opening, which is both artificial and forcing, will also be used with certain strong no-trump hands.

Specifically, we use it to show a 23-24-point or 27-or-higher-point notrump.

There are any number of ways to respond to this forcing bid. The simplest one is what we recommend. We use two diamonds as a complete negative. Specifically, a hand with no ace or king and not more than one queen. Two hearts becomes a catch-all to cover all hands that include some values. South's two notrump rebid indicates a 23-24-point notrump hand. North raises to three. The same contract would be reached under any bidding system and makes easily. 12 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Will vote Tuesday on Walnut school referenda

WALNUT— Tuesday is the special referenda for Walnut Community High School District and Walnut Community Consolidated Grade School District. The districts are asking for a 40-cent increase in taxes for educational purposes or a combined increase of 80 cents. The referenda will be held together at the Walnut Grade School from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Following is information concerning the board's decision to place a tax increase to a vote of the people.

On June 30, 1969, the balance in the funds available for education expenses was $54,000. The district has had expenditures in excess of revenues in five out of six years since then where the balance on June 30, 1975 was almost zero. The amount of loss becomes greater with each year as can be seen by losses of $12,000 in 1973-74 and $24,000 in 1974-75. Although the board of education has tried to cut some areas of the budget without adversely affecting the educational program, the 1975-76 budget projections indicate a potential loss to the district of $40,000. This amount will increase tremendously unless the board is able to come up with additional revenue or cut back the budget.

Since the district is at its maximum tax levy without a referendum, tax money only will increase with an increase in assessed valuation. The assessed valuation is less now than it was five years ago. According to state and county sources, the assessments for the total district are not expected to rise much, if at all, in the next four years.

State aid is also not expected to be of much help. It will increase gradually over the next couple of years, but then fall back to its present level as the projected enrollment at Walnut High School decreases.

If the present rate of expenditures for education continues, the district could reach its legal maximum debt limit in three to four years. If the board is to insure that this not become the case, they must seek alternative solutions. One alternative is to increase tax through a referendum. A second alternative is a combination of alternatives designed to cut expenditures: enlarge class sizes; cut programs; and reduce staff and services. Deciding what to cut would involve difficult decisions which would take much study and communication to determine priorities. A third alternative is consolidation. These alternatives might also be used as a combination of alternatives in order to alleviate the financial problems.

The entire 40-cent increase would not necessarily be levied each year. The district is planning on levying only 20 cents initially. The high school should be able to decrease its levy after the present deficit is brought to a positive balance. This would take a maximum of two years. Also, in 1980 the high school building bonds would be paid off which would reduce the tax rate by approximately nine cents. 1975-76 is also the final year of the grade school building bonds which would reduce the tax rate after that by .16 cents.

Many of these points were covered in the public meeting on Nov. 4. Any suggestions or questions would be welcomed. Call Supt. Bellaver at the Walnut High School office (379-2434) any time during 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. or stop by the office personally, or contact your school board members.

Progress made on problem

MT. MORRIS— Excellent progress is being made in alleviating disturbances which became evident with the start-up and testing of Kable Printing Company's solvent recovery system a few weeks ago, says Kable Vice President and General Manager William E. Shaw.

"The company has undertaken an extensive study of the new system and has identified areas where operational noises are excessive," he explained. "Further, the problems are solvable and corrective steps are being taken.

"The company can understand and appreciate the concern of its neighbors," Shaw said, adding that "it is unfortunate that emotionalism has appeared and has been fanned by a few inaccurate printed reports."

He noted that Kable had called in technicians from the manufacturers of the equipment as well as a noise abatement expert from a consulting firm in Maryland. As a result, four problem areas have been identified. Modifications have resulted in a noticeable reduction in the noise level generated by the system's boiler. Other abatement measures have or will be made on fans, duct work, and cooling towers.

Corrective steps are quite involved since the solvent recovery system is made up of a number of components and each requires special modifications.

Residents of the plant area had made reference to a "high pitched" noise.

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Proposed state regulations on paying hospitals and clinics for treating welfare patients have run into legal opposition from the Illinois Hospital Association and some of its members acting individually.

It is uncertain as yet whether the legal tests of the new rules will affect services to welfare recipients.

But Robert O'Leary, president of the Illinois Hospital Association, says many of the 300 IHA members object to the "agree or get out" manner in which the rules changes have been presented to the hospitals.

"They are being asked to sign the new agreement with a gun at their head," O'Leary said in a telephone interview from Oak Brook.

The proposals were announced Oct. 7 and were to go into effect Nov. 1.

The changes included a freeze on rates paid to hospitals and clinics at Oct. 6 levels and creation of a three-member board to review requests for tu-ture rate adjustments.

James Trainor, director of the Illinois Department of Public Aid, said this would help stop soaring costs to the state's medical welfare program and eliminate wide disparities in charges for the same medical procedures.

He submitted the plan to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for approval.

The federal government, which foots half of the $700 million-plus annual tab for payments to medical providers, has requested additional information on changes in the regulations and has not yet approved them.

But a spokesman for Trainor said the director feels the state can go ahead with the plan without final federal approval.

Trainor on Monday selected a Champaign doctor from the University of Illinois, an Evans-ton lawyer and a Chicago accountant for the Hospital Reimbursement Review Board.

The day after Trainor announced the plan, O'Leary told a Springfield news conference that the IHA opposed it. He said the new regulations might force some hospitals doing a large portion of their business with welfare patients to close. He added that many hospitals were charging less than cost for treating such patients. O'Leary said the IHA would consider legal action to block adoption of the rules.

Illinois Focus

The department sent letters announcing the new proposal to the more than 200 hospitals and clinics in the state which get money for treating welfare patients.

The medical providers were requested to sign a "supplement" to the agreement on reimbursements between the state and the hospitals and clinics.

"For the purposes of this agreement, the term 'full allowable costs' shall mean those costs reimbursable under the state plan which has been approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and which is in effect at the date of reconciliation," the letter, obtained from the IHA, said.

Department officials say payments will stop Nov. 15 if hospitals fail to send in a signed statement.

More than half the responses to the department's letter received thus far contain statements by hospitals and clinics saying they were reserving the right to legal action to assure full reimbursement of costs even though they had signed the agreement "supplement."

Thomas Storer of the IDPA said the department is accepting those letters provided the reservation clauses are listed separate from the agreement.

In cases in which the hospitals or clinics have written something on the agreement itself, letters are being returned, he said. Storer said attorneys for the department have advised him such alterations are legally unacceptable.

A suit seeking an injunction blocking adoption of the regulations was filed in late October in U.S. District Court at Chicago, he said.

A federal judge denied a request for a preliminary injunction, he said, and a date has not yet been set for a full hearing.

O'Leary said the IHA will try to show that if the rules are adopted, patient service will be damaged.

Clyde V. Downing, acting regional commissioner on social and rehabilitation services of HEW, said the department needs more information from the state on its proposal. He said his department informed the state in a letter dated Nov. 7 that it was "unable to determine" the acceptability of the plan in "its present form."

Downing said the federal government needs more information about the review board and what criteria it will use in determining whether costs charged by a hospital are "reasonable."

Picking the No. 1 Team

Who chooses the national collegiate football champion? Recognized national ratings began with the 1924 season, with Notre Dame's Fighting Irish chosen as the top team through a rating formula devised by a football buff. Since 1936, the Associated Press has called upon 50 sports writers and broadcasters across the country to vote for the national champion each year. In 1950, United Press International developed a board of 35 college coaches to name the top team. Unfortunately, the organizations don't always agree. Last year AP chose Oklahoma, and UPI picked Southern California. The NCAA may be leaning toward a post-season football play-off to determine the No. 1 team.

Forum at Sauk Valley

The problems caused by scattered housing, business and recreational developments will be the topic of a forum on Nov. 25 at Sauk Valley College sponsored by the Illinois State Rural Development Committee and northwest Illinois U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies. The forum starts at 9:15 a.m. and concludes at 3:30 p.m.

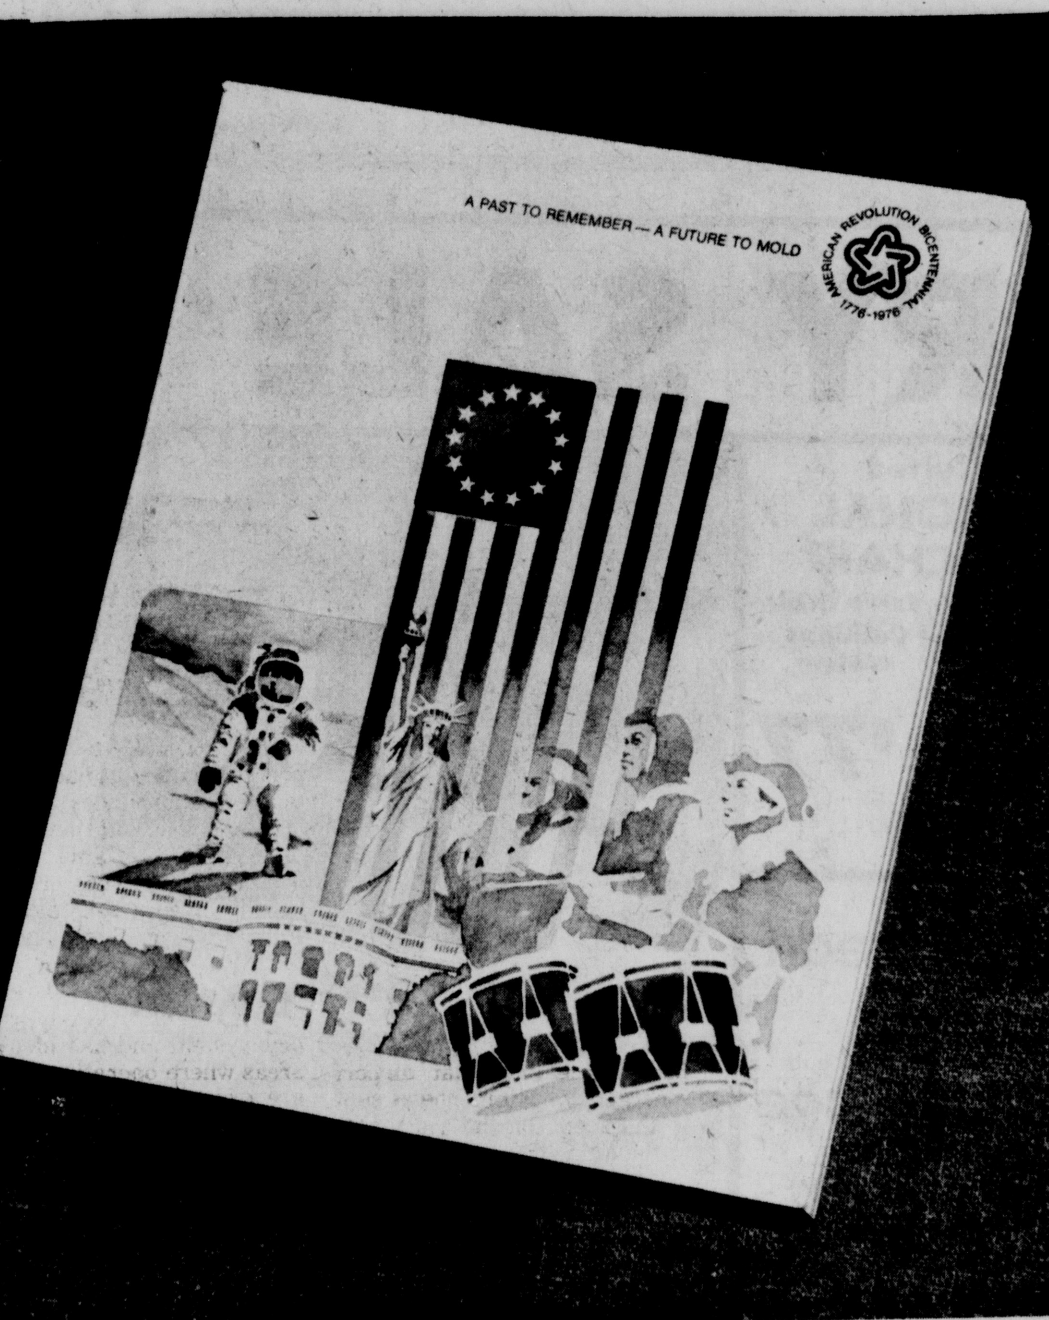

Featured on the program will be Dr. Doug Yanggen of the University of Wisconsin, Rod Engelen, vice president of Barton-Aschman Associates of Evanston, and John Quinn of the University of Illinois. A reactor panel of area people include Mrs. Vivian Johnson, a Loves Park realtor and member of the Winnebago County Board; Ronald Engelkes of Rockford, chairman of the Zoning and Building Committee of the Winnebago County Board; Delbert Scheider of Freeport, president of the Highland Community College Board and member of the Stephenson County Planning Commission, and Robert Guehler, a DeKalb County farmer active in the Lake Holiday Development.

The forum is designed to interest elected officials, planning commission and zoning board of appeal members, realtors, developers, agricultural leaders and concerned individuals.

The registration fee of $5 includes a noon luncheon. To make a reservation, contact a County Extension office or call the Region One Extension office at Dixon, 288-3361. A complete program is available upon request. The registration deadline is Nov. 19.

While some developments are properly located and well-planned, conflicts may develop, cropland may be lost and the cost of public services increased from hit-or-miss growth.

Bicentennial theme for telephone directories

Two hundred years of American heritage is depicted through the artist's concept on the Central Telephone Company directories for the Dixon and Savanna areas, Commercial Superintendent James Radke said today.

Delivery of the directories will be by mail this week. Each residential customer will receive one directory per main telephone line. However, if additional directories are needed, customers may request them at the business offices. Radke noted that the one directory per main line was instituted last year as both a means of cost savings, as well as conservation.

The backdrop of the cover is a 13-star flag and a sketch of an astronaut walking on the moon. The progress of man through the nation's first 200 years is shown by the famous characters from the Spirit of '76, the Statue of Liberty, and the White House.

Also included on the cover is the American Revolution Bicentennial symbol and the accompanying bicentennial slogan, "A Past To Remember — A Future To Mold."

Radke noted that the telephone directory is a valuable household tool. In addition to listing emergency numbers, the directory includes a call guide, telephone business office hours, explanation of all charges, area codes for direct dialing of long-distance calls, and the yellow pages. To make it easy to locate information, the directories contain an index at the start of the book.

Radke observed that use of the directory in looking up listings saves the customer time as well as lessening the chance of dialing an incorrect number.

Oregon Council buys squad car

OREGON — The Oregon City Council accepted the bid of Whitney Buick for a new squad car Monday night at its regular meeting. The bid was $2,787.74 for a 1976 Century four-door Buick, plus the trade-in of a 1974 four-door Catalina Pontiac. There were seven bids submitted.

The members granted the request of the City Fire Department for the purchase of a new radio, a GE five-watt, two frequency, with the Fire Department to duplicate another of the same kind, for use in the fire chief's car and one to be used in the truck. The cost to the city will be $735 plus the trade-in of the present radio now in use. The radio is to be purchased from the Rock River Service, Rockford.

In other business, the council voted to approve the agreement with the Illinois Farmers Union Comprehensive Manpower Program, Region I, in which the state will help those who have been out of work for at least 15 weeks and can be employed for daily labor up to the amount of $5,497.80 after all sources of work have been exhausted.

—Warren Shetter, street commissioner, reported that the state has approved the application of the City of Oregon for funding street sign replacements in the amount of $5,000. The new state statutes require all stop and yield signs be increased in size from 24 inches to 30 inches. The height increase in signs must be from ground to bottom of the sign at seven feet. The state has also approved the application of the city of $500 for street striping.

—Rock Valley Cablevision made a progress report to the council members in which they stated they expect to start work in the spring as soon as weather permits which is expected to be about April 1, 1976, with operation on a limited basis by June 1 and in full operation by Aug. 1, 1976.

—Reported that a meeting will be held Monday at 7 p.m. before the Planning Commission to act on the petition of Vonard and Joan Johnson for a zoning change of lots 12 and 13 in Block 4 from present residential to Industrial.

—Announced a meeting with the liquor control commission on Nov. 24 at 6:30 p.m. to consider problems that might exist.

Stalemate in talks over U.S. missile and Russian bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The stagnation of U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms talks results from an untested American missile and a relatively short-range Russian bomber.

According to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Russian inflexibility has brought to a stop the efforts to sign a new strategic arms limitation treaty — SALT — that limits offensive nuclear weapons.

He told a news conference Monday that only 10 per cent of the SALT negotiating process is incomplete, but the margin has separated the two superpowers for months. Recent developments show no improvement.

The troublesome 10 per cent focuses on the Soviet Backfire bomber and the U.S. cruise missile system. The first is a sophisticated but rather old-fashioned weapon, the other a fundamental threat to the atomic arms balance.

The question is whether and how many of these weapons should be counted in the formula worked out last year by President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev to limit the number of offensive nuclear arms allowed each country.

Under the Vladivostok agreement, named for the Siberian city where the two men met, each side would get no more than 2,400 strategic missile launchers or airplanes.

Exactly what are these troublesome systems?

The U.S. cruise missile is essentially a small, unmanned drone airplane that flies at less than the speed of sound and can be launched from a bomber or a submarine. Its advantages include radar-evading ground-hugging flight, mobile launching and pinpoint targeting.

So far, it has not been tested, but it is projected to be able to reach at least 1,500 miles from its launch point, which means a plane or submarine can fire one into any area of the Soviet Union.

The Backfire, a name attached to the plane by Western military experts, is the most sophisticated bomber ever developed by the Russians. It flies faster than sound, can carry nuclear weapons and air-to-ground missiles, has swing wings and is highly rated by U.S. military analysts.

Its range is 2,300 miles, which means it cannot reach the continental United States and return without refueling. It's nearest American equivalent is the F111, an intermediate-range bomber in service for several years.

In fact, that similarity exemplifies the dispute. In demanding that the SALT limit include the Backfire, the United States claims the plane is really intercontinental because it can reach the American mainland and return if refueled.

The Russians counter that the Backfire is really an intermediate-range bomber, and, like the F111, should be excluded from the Vladivostok formula.

American intelligence experts are divided over the objectives the Russians have set for their new plane, with some analysts saying Moscow intends to use it on the Russian periphery.

Other U.S. experts deny that, although so far the Russians have deployed about 25 Backfires in the western Soviet Union and Black Sea area.

LONDON (AP) — Richard Burton, sticking to a pledge that helped him win back Elizabeth Taylor, has celebrated his birthday by drinking mineral water. It was champagne for everyone else.

The Burtons flew in from Johannesburg, South Africa, for the party Monday in Dorchester. They were remarried last month in Botswana, in southern Africa.

Among those at the party to greet the Burtons were the show business famous — Sir Ralph Richardson, Stanley Baker, Dame Margot Fonteyn. The guest list of 130 included Burton's eight brothers and sisters and their families.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Former Rep. Carl Vinson has been released from the hospital a week before his 92nd birthday.

He was hospitalized a month ago for treatment of circulatory problems. Vinson, who lives alone, went to the home of friends after his discharge from the hospital Monday.

A former Armed Services Committee chairman, Vinson served in the House for 50 years — longer than anyone in history.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has advised Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft he should resign from the Air Force before becoming President Ford's special assistant for national security affairs.

William I. Greener Jr., a deputy White House press secretary, said Monday that Scowcroft had not been directed to resign.

Greener said Scowcroft already has made plans to retire from the Air Force.

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Schlesinger, fired last week by President Ford as defense secretary, got a round of applause from 4,000 people who worked under him as he left the Pentagon for the last time.

Schlesinger reviewed a military honor guard Monday and was honored with the applause of the military officers, civilian officials and other Defense Department workers at the ceremony.

ELEGANT GARAGE graces San Francisco's Washington Street where the owners replaced messy trash cans, garden tools and boxes of junk with gilt-lettered windows and luxurious drapes.

Says report of $1 gasoline are without foundation

CHICAGO (AP) — The chairman of the American Petroleum Institute says motorists should forget about reports gasoline prices will climb to $1 a gallon.

Charles E. Spahr, who also is chairman of Standard Oil Co. (Ohio), says the $1 speculation is irresponsible and without foundation.

Spahr said prices might increase two to three cents a gallon if crude oil prices are decontrolled but that competition will maintain reasonable and realistic levels.

Such controls are to end Saturday night unless Congress and President Ford agree upon an extension. Spahr suggested Ford veto a conference bill now under consideration in that "it is far from objective."

"The bill would cause greater dependency on foreign oil supplies in that it fails to include any incentives to raise the capital needed for boosting domestic supplies," Spahr said.

He said prices, in the longer run, will have to increase as costs go up.

"But the industry has demonstrated that competition exists to such a degree the public is not going to be gouged by having to pay prices that represent undue margins for the seller," he said. "So I think you ought to forget about those reports of a dollar a gallon."

The energy bill Ford was asked to veto would roll back crude prices to an average of $7.55 a barrel, compared with the current $8.75 average.

Spahr said the bill would be disastrous to the industry and to the energy independence objectives of the Ford administration.

City on the brink—part 1 $26 million 11 years ago started NYC on way to crisis

EDITOR'S NOTE: New York City stands poised over default. How did this happen to the nation's largest city and a world financial capital? This is the first part of a three-part series examining the events and decisions that led to the crisis.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A $26 million entry in the New York City budget 11 years ago seemed out of place in the wilderness of numbers that totaled $3.3 billion.

Experts now say that small sum may have paved the way for the city's financial demise. 11 years later, as the nation's largest city now struggles to pay off $12.4 billion in debts and balance its budget.

That $26 million was the first time the city's politicians borrowed money to pay for every-day city expenses.

In this case, former Mayor Robert F. Wagner decided that rather than raise taxes or cut back on city services, he would take expense items — some consultant fees — and put them into the city's capital budget, which is financed by floating bonds and short-term notes.

He was able to do this because in mid-1964, then-Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and the state legislature decided to allow the city to borrow money to pay for a variety of normal expenses.

The legal door was thus flung open for Wagner, former Mayor John V. Lindsay and Mayor Abraham D. Beame to borrow for almost any expense item they pleased, while amassing a "hidden" budget deficit recently conceded by the Beame administration at $3 billion.

In 1969 and 1970, Lindsay doubled current expense borrowing from $84 million to $151 million by switching manpower training and job development from the expense budget to the capital budget.

In 1974, Beame shifted $722 million in expense items to the capital budget. Last June, New York State Comptroller Arthur Levitt studied the years when Lindsay was mayor and Beame was comptroller, and found the city had used bonds to finance city salaries, library books, architects fees, even interest on other bonds.

Most now expect the city's deficit financing of operating expenses to top $1 billion in fiscal 1975-76.

"By borrowing to pay for operating expenses year after year, there develops a built-in, permanent need for more taxes, just to pay the interest on borrowings," Levitt said.

The budget itself has quadrupled in the past decade, from $3.3 billion in 1965 to a current $12.2 billion.

Before Mayor Beame was forced by the current fiscal crisis to lay off some 36,000 workers, the city's workforce had more than tripled from 103,000 in 1956 to 340,000 in mid-1975.

The floodgates for generous wage and pension benefits were opened by another Wagner decision in 1958 to allow the city's workers the right to unionize as they wished.

The unions first flexed their bargaining muscle in 1966, when city transit workers won a then-unheard of 15.7 per cent pay raise over two years after a crippling 12-day strike.

Since then, the average transit worker's pay has gone from $7,222 a year to $15,125, up 109 per cent, and some city unions have done even better. During this period the city's inflation rate has gone up 78.4 per cent.

Over-all, a 1974 study by the Citizens Union Research Foundation showed that the city's pension costs had gone up more than 400 per cent in the past 10 years. Many workers can retire with at least half pay after 20 years of service, which is better on a percentage basis than terms offered almost anywhere else in the private or government sectors.

A look at 10 years of city budgets by the Citizens Budget Commission shows that city pensions and salaries are not the whole story of New York City's fall towards default.

Between 1965 and the present, welfare and social service costs have gone up six-fold to more than $2.4 billion. More than one million New Yorkers are on relief. New York foots a far larger share of its social services bill than any other large city, most of which have county and state help.

Education costs, which include a tuition-free college system even for wealthy students, have tripled to $2 billion. Since 1970, when open university enrollment began, more than 19,000 students were added, bringing the total to an estimated 270,800.

The city's health costs, which include maintenance of 19 municipal hospitals, have likewise tripled to more than $1 billion.

Other costs, including police and fire protection and environmental services, have also doubled and tripled in the past decade.

And debt service, the amount of budget money that goes toward paying off the city's bonds and notes, has gone from $470 million in 1965 to more than $198 billion — 14 cents out of every city tax dollar.

While costs have gone up, the city's corporate, personal and property taxes have not kept pace.

Here, forces inside and outside the city figure in, and they lie at the heart of the city's huge borrowing needs.

New York City has experienced great shifts of population since the 19th century, but the changes since World War I have been financially unfavorable. Prodded by federal government home mortgage guarantee and loan programs, the city's affluent moved to the suburbs in the 1950s to be joined by others fleeing crime and other urban ills through the 1960s.

In the last decade nearly a million middle and upper-middle class New Yorkers have left, replaced by a million of the nation's poor, many of whom became welfare cases.

Along with the middle class, many businesses have left the city, taking with them an estimated 500,000 jobs in the past five years alone. Meanwhile, New York City's latest unemployment figures stand at 12.2 per cent, while the national rate is 8.6 per cent.

Local economists say the city never recovered from the 1969-70 national recession, much less the latest one.

Another factor which has eroded the city's tax base has been the high rate of building abandonment by landlords in run-down neighborhoods such as the South Bronx, a problem some say was heightened with the coming of rent controls during World War II.

It is presently estimated that up to one million buildings remain with rents frozen at or near mid-1940 levels. The city is one of the last areas in the nation to continue the rent control program.

In the past decade the amount of unpaid and uncollectable city property taxes has grown to about $400 million.

Outside the city, once-sympathetic attitudes toward city poverty programs were changing and those changes have meant fewer federal and state dollars for New York City.

Before the years of President Johnson's Great Society programs, the federal and state government provided only 25 per cent of the city's financing.

Under Johnson, that share soared to 48 per cent of the city's budget. The Great Society programs were cut back during the Nixon years, and in the past four years state and federal contributions to the city have dropped to 43 per cent of the budget. City officials, who in the '60s willingly took on federal poverty programs, now say that the more conservative Nixon and Ford administrations left New York City holding the bag in the 1970s.

While federal contributions to antipoverty programs were cut back, the city was loath to end the programs begun under federal sponsorship because of the impact on the city's poor.

Wallace:

Strong organization, big bankroll and unique problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, entering what probably will be his last presidential campaign, has a big political bankroll, a strong organization and a set of problems that surely would keep a less combative politician out of the race.

It is the fourth national campaign for Wallace, 56. It's his first from a wheelchair. He says there will not be another unless he wins the White House in 1976 and seeks re-election in 1980. That is not likely.

No political leader outside the Wallace camp suggests that he has a chance of winning the presidency. But he is as usual a force for the Democrats to reckon with, more formidable than ever given the party's big field of candidates. On a crowded presidential primary ballot, a minority often is enough to win, as Wallace showed the Democrats four years ago. His name has led the divided field in early polls.

Wallace's campaign manager, Charles S. Snider, says the governor is better organized, better financed and better prepared than before.

"We're probably in as good a position as the governor's ever been in," Snider said in a telephone interview as Wallace prepared for Wednesday's news conference in Montgomery, Ala., where he is to formally announce his candidacy. The formal announcement is almost redundant. The campaign has been going nonstop since the last one ended.

Paralyzed from the waist down, frequently in pain, facing constant questions about his health, Wallace is likely to encounter more searching scrutiny than ever before on his proposals for dealing with national problems and his formula for foreign policy.

In past national campaigns, his platform consisted largely of opposition to the things frustrating voters. This time, pressure is on candidates to talk about solutions and not just hit at problems.

Wallace could have problems matching the record he made in winning a half-dozen primaries four years ago. Any time his performance falls short of his 1972 showing, it will be read as evidence he's slipping.

There are reports of dwindling blue-collar support for Wallace in parts of the South, once the base of his power. There are two Southern rivals waiting to take him on, each hoping to win national spurs by beating George Wallace in his own neighborhood.

Former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford tried and was trounced in his home state in 1972. He now seeks a rematch. Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is showing signs of headway in his first presidential race.

Health, of course, is the big question for the Wallace candidacy now. He was shot as he campaigned in Laurel, Md., on May 15, 1972, and is paralyzed from the waist down. He takes medication to ease his pain. But Snider says reports of his health problems are exaggerated.

National Democratic leaders are, as always, solidly against Wallace. But instead of open opposition that would hand him an issue as it did in 1972, national party leaders are trying to quiet him with kindness.

Mueller wins twin honors

MT. MORRIS — Senior halfback John Mueller, who led the Mt. Morris high school varsity football team in rushing for two seasons, won double honors Monday night at the school's fall sports banquet.

Mueller was honored as Back of the Year and also was named co-captain of the 1975 Mounders squad. Senior tackle Bill Alden was cited as Lineman of the Year. Senior fullback Donn Claussen shares co-captain honors with Mueller.

Another senior, end Ron Slater, received the Big-Hitter Award, given each year to the outstanding defensive player in memory of Dave Feary, a tackle on the 1972 unbeaten Mounders team who was killed in an auto accident in the spring of 1974.

Golf squad honors went to seniors Jeff

Condit, named Most Valuable Player, and Brad Blake, captain. Coach Jim Jennings announced a "first" in awarding a golf letter to sophomore Alisa Omert, who became the first girl to earn a letter competing on a boys' team.

Senior Neil Anderson was cited as Most Valuable Runner on the Mounders cross-country squad, which won the Mid-Northern Conference title for the fourth year in a row.

Also honored were members of the girls field hockey and tennis teams. Field hockey coach Salley Wessels was a surprise recipient of a big trophy presented by members of her Sectional Tournament squad.

The annual banquet sponsored by the Hilltopper Sports Association attracted a crowd of more than 350 persons.

For the 1-7 Packers First visit to Pontiac

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Having come acropper in Chicago's ancient Soldier Field, where the Bears proved surprisingly uncongenial, the Packers next seek renewal in one of the nation's newest sports palaces, huge Pontiac, Mich., Stadium.

The Packers will be invading the imposing, 80,399-seat edifice — surrounded by a "floating" roof — in search of an elusive second victory and an abrupt end to a three-game losing streak. It has left them with a 1-7 record in the Central Division of the National Football Conference and one game to the rear of the Bears.

They also will be more than casually interested in redress for the embarrassment suffered at Lion hands in Milwaukee County Stadium, Sept. 21, when Detroit blocked three Packer punts to forge a 30-16 victory in their mutual season opener.

In appraising the rematch, Coach Bart Starr acknowledges the biggest task facing him and his staff is regrouping the Packers psychologically for the Pontiac invasion in the wake of that Chicago misadventure.

"We're going to have to work at it," he admitted. "When you're down like this, it's a depressing feeling. We're going to have to work extremely hard to get back up there."

Earlier, Starr had noted that an apparent lack of emotion had been a factor in Sunday's Windy City ambush. "I know our people were working at getting ready all week — the coaches as well as the players," he said. "I think we were all working to get there. But for some reason, I don't think we were as high as we should have been... That's everybody."

By way of explanation, Starr pointed out, "We'd been up there three weeks in a row — for Dallas, Pittsburgh and Minnesota — and then when we needed to be up again for a team that was roughly in the same position as us we weren't able to do it. You have to pay respects to the Bears, because they came ready to play."

"We were waltzing through the motions early in the game, both offensively and defensively. It perked up in the second half, but by then it was too late."

The search for a catalyst had prompted the insertion of veteran John Hadl at quarterback with 3:45 remaining in the third quarter and the Bears leading 27-7, he said.

"We felt there was still plenty of time left in the game and that John could give us a spark that might have been needed at that point," Starr said. "He has so many things to offer from an experience standpoint. I think you could see that by the little things he was doing after he got in there. We didn't put it in the end zone right after that, but I think you could see the effect of his being in there."

In this connection, Starr assured he had not been displeased with the debut of Don Milan, who had started at quarterback in behalf of Hadl, troubled by a bruised back.

"I think, overall, Don did a good job," Starr said. "I think it was a good baptism. He has a lot of poise. I'm just sorry we couldn't have done a better job of supporting him in the early going."

Milan's maiden NFL start — he never had started a game, pre-season or regular season, in previous tours of duty with Oakland, Kansas City and Los Angeles — was highlighted by the Packers' longest gain from scrimmage of the season. It came on Milan's 56-yard collaboration with Steve Odom in the second quarter.

Over the route, Milan completed 8 of 20 passes for the 127 yards and one touchdown — with one interception. The latter bloomed into a touchdown for the Bears. "That didn't bother me," the Packer quarterback later asserted. "Any team is capable of coming back from 14 points down."

Milan also emerged with one credit he hadn't expected to earn. He came away as the Packers' leading rusher, with 30 yards in three attempts, including a pair of scrambles and one sortie which stemmed from a broken play.

In addition, he combined with Hadl and rookie Carlos Brown to produce the Packers' best passing day of the season, 268 net yards. Hadl was 10 of 18 for 95 yards and Brown, who came in for the final series, 3 of 4 for 63 yards and one touchdown, the latter an 18-yard pitch to flanker Barry Smith.

Seaver wins NL Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — Perfectionist Tom Seaver of the New York Mets won the National League's Cy Young Award today for the third time in his career.

The Met ace, who makes a complex science out of pitching, equalled the achievement of Hall of Famer Sandy Koufax, the only other player in baseball history to win the prestigious award three times.

Koufax, of the Los Angeles Dodgers, was named the National League's top pitcher in 1963, 1965 and 1966.

Seaver, named previously in 1969 and 1973, was given the prize by the Baseball Writers Association of America in a battle with San Diego stopper Randy Jones.

Seaver was tossed 15 first-place votes, seven for second place and two for third from the 24 writers, two from each of the National League cities, for a total of 98 points.

Under a 5-3-1 point system, Jones was given 80 points, based on seven first-place ballots, 14 for second and three thirds.

Al Hrabosky, the spectacular relief ace of the St. Louis Cardinals, pulled down 33 points, based on two firsts, three seconds and 14 thirds.

Four other pitchers also received third-place votes — John Montefusco of the San Francisco Giants, Cincinnati's Don Gullett and Andy Messersmith and Don Sutton of Los Angeles.

Seaver, despite being hampered by a bad back, rebounded from an 11-11 season in 1974 to lead the National League in victories with 22 and in strikeouts with 243. It was his eighth straight year with 200 or more strikeouts, a major league record.

Seaver also was tops in three other categories — complete games with 15, shutouts with five and innings pitched with 280. The season was the right-hander's fourth 20-victory year in eight in the major leagues.

Jones, who led the league with an earned run average of 2.24, was the National's only other 20-game winner. On the final day of the season, when Seaver already had 21 victories, Jones grieved for his 21st and failed. On the same day, Seaver picked up his 22nd.

Like Seaver, Jones was up among the leaders in virtually every important pitching category except strikeouts, where his total was only 103 for 285 innings.

And also like Seaver, Jones bounced back from a disastrous performance in 1974. He was a 20-game loser then.

Jones is the first San Diego player to receive a vote in the Cy Young balloting. Jones and Seaver were the only players named on all 24 ballots.

Missiles dominate voting

FREEMONT — The Milledgeville Missiles, champions of the Upstate Illinois Football League for 1975, dominated the voting for the All-Conference team selected here, recently.

Milledgeville grabbed 13 of the 30 All-Conference spots available, including eight on offense and five on defense. Five players from Milledgeville made both the offensive and defensive squads including Dave Geary, Chuck Geary, Bob Edlund, John Nesemeier and Tim Livengood.

All five are seniors, with Dave Geary (6'3"—185), Nesemeier (6'4"—170) and Livengood (5'10"—170) being selected in the defensive and offensive line. Edlund (5'10"—165) was one of four defensive backs named in addition to his offensive back slot. Chuck Geary (5'10"—205) made the defensive squad at linebacker and the offensive team at a back.

representative was 5'9"—170 senior Jeff Heckman at linebacker.

Brad Garnhart (5'9"—160 senior) and Rod Bircher (5'10"—195 senior) were Pearl City selections in the offensive line. Chet Marcum (5'10"—170 senior) was named an offensive back along with defensive lineman Jeff Erbsen (5'9"—170 junior) and defensive back Brent Smith (5'9"—135 senior).

Leaf River linebacker Brad Miller (6'2"—210 senior) and Orangeville defensive lineman Norm Folgate (5'6"—156 senior) round out the All-Conference selections.

Unanimous selections were

Hines at a defensive back, Dave Geary and Livengood in the defensive line, Adolph in the offensive backfield and Nesemeier plus Livengood in the offensive line.

Several Franklin Center athletes and one Ashton player were named to Honorable Mention ratings. Ron Smith made the squad at offensive line for Franklin Center while the Eagles also placed Heckman and Scott Murphy at running backs.

Brian Dvorak was the Ashton representative in the defensive line, with Franklin Center's Murphy also being mentioned as a linebacker.

ABA drops Sails

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association dropped the other shoe Tuesday, folding its San Diego franchise in a move towards consolidation and economic stability.

When the league closed the Baltimore Claws three weeks ago, there was strong sentiment among some officials for dropping San Diego as well. That would eliminate costly travel to the West Coast and allow the ABA to go into the season as a compact, eight-team unit.

But Frank Goldberg, owner of the San Diego Sails, was able to keep the team alive — until Tuesday, when the ABA decided to pull up stakes after a fraction more than three seasons in San Diego.

There were indications from some Sails officials that the action was taken despite objections by Goldberg, but a league official said following the day-long meetings, "My feeling is that Goldberg just sat down and made a straight business decision."

"What Commissioner Dave DeBusschere is trying to do is establish some sort of stability," the ABA official explained. "We want to show that we're operating as a business — a sound, sensible business."

Goldberg left the ABA meeting, returned immediately to San Diego and was unavailable for comment. But other Sails principles expressed shock at the dissolution of their franchise.

"I'm in a state of shock. I'm stunned. I had no idea," said Bill Musselman, who left the University of Minnesota to become coach of the Sails this season. "Goldberg is a basketball fanatic. I can't believe he would drop the franchise when he just bought it."

Rusting away

The cannon traditionally fired every time the San Diego Chargers score a touchdown during a home game stands idle in the stadium. The attendant did not move from his chair during the opening two games in which the Chargers were shut out. San Diego has scored only 80 points in eight games so far, all losses.

Illini plan night sports

CHICAGO (AP) — The University of Illinois is planning an ambitious program of night sports, including college football, now that Memorial Stadium is equipped with lights.

Athletic Director Cecil Coleman appeared at a meeting of Chicago Football Writers Tuesday and revealed plans of having occasional night games for purposes of television.

"I don't think anyone will complain about playing at night when a half million dollars are involved," said Coleman, who added that Illinois definitely wants to host the Illinois High School Association football championships.

The IHSA started its championship football playoffs last season with the five title games being played at Illinois State at Normal where Hancock Stadium was equipped with artificial turf and lights.

The University of Illinois put in its artificial turf this year and the light towers went up last week.

Coleman said he has talked to Harry Fitzhugh, executive secretary of the IHSA, about having the games shifted to the University of Illinois.

"They seem to be reluctant at present," said Coleman. "I think that's because they drew around 10,000 last year in a stadium which seats 22,000. They might be waiting to outgrow that stadium before making a move. I don't think they want 10,000 people in a stadium which can handle 65,000."

"We want every single state high school championship to be held at Illinois," said Coleman. "We want the athletes and the students to come down and see our facilities for themselves. Even the athletes see a lot more and have more fun when they come down to play in championship games than when they get a paid visit under the recruiting program."

On the subject of Illinois playing Big Ten games at night, Coleman said that would probably be one or two games a season and he didn't envision any opposition from other Big Ten members.

"Why not a Michigan-Illinois night game on television?" said Coleman. "It could mean a half million dollars and nobody is going to turn that down."

Coleman explained that the NCAA television appearance limit does not include night games.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-621: Martha M., aged 43, is medically alarmed. "Dr. Crane," she exclaimed, "I had suffered with arthritis for several years, despite various medical treatments. In desperation, I then decided to try your suggestion that maybe a little ocean water would be helpful."

"For I have followed your 'Worry Clinic' a long time and had recalled how your father-in-law was completely cured of his fixed arthritic hip by a little ocean water daily."

"Well, within 4 months, my arthritis was entirely gone! I don't know which of the 44 water-soluble trace chemicals in that sea water did the trick, but I was well."

"And I have kept on using the ocean water every day, putting a spoonful in my tomato juice, milk or soup, etc."

"But now my neighbor tells me we should drink nothing but distilled water, and has shown me a new book that claims all our ailments are due to chemicals in our water."

"So what am I to believe?"

Use "Horse Sense"
Millions of Americans, often with college degrees, still lack "Horse Sense."

They are like the German infantry in World War I, who were said to goose-step over a known precipice at the command of their officers!

Never be guilty of such "goose-stepping," regardless of how many doctoral degrees a speaker or writer holds, if the latter's statements don't harmonize with practical experience (logic).

For example, where would Adam and Eve have obtained distilled water to drink?

Yet Adam reached the age of 950 years.

In those days, the soil was rich in the 44 water-soluble trace chemical elements, much of which have since washed back to the sea.

Man-made pollutants may now make water unhealthful but God Almighty apparently intended us to obtain the beneficial trace chemicals via drinking water.

The distilled water advocates say that their water will dissolve the calcium deposits and other chemicals that may cause arthritis.

If so, why did the addition of a little ocean water every day make Martha's arthritis disappear instead of increasing it?

Mrs. Crane's father had a fixed or "frozen" right hip of 12 years duration, so he would yell if we even lifted his foot an inch to take off his slippers.

He also dragged the leg, for he couldn't swing it forward, like his left leg, in walking, but used a crutch, plus a cane.

Then Mrs. Crane added a spoonful of concentrated sea brine (10 times ocean strength) to his oatmeal and other liquid intake daily.

However, she didn't tell him about it, so any change could not be attributed to suggestibility.

Yet in about four months, his right hip had loosened completely and he not only could stride normally with both legs, but could cross that right leg over the left knee to remove his own shoe and sock!

And he lived to be 98.

Hundreds of you readers have reported similar remarkable changes by the ADDITION of a little sea water instead of reducing the chemical content.

Our medical journals have recently reported that soft water seems to cause more hardening of the arteries while hard water, contrary to what one might assume at first glance, actually produces softer, more elastic arteries.

Keep an open mind, therefore, and test distilled water if you wish, but meanwhile send for my booklet "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Doctor Says:

Exercise routine leads to good posture

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB— Please tell me what exercises strengthen the muscles that will help me keep my shoulders back? What ones pull my shoulders forward?

DEAR READER— Using proper exercise routines to maintain good posture is important to your health. Keeping the shoulders back and avoiding compression of the ribs helps maintain normal respiration.

Any of the exercises that rotate the arms backward, like the back stroke in swimming, will contract the muscles between your shoulder blades and help pull your shoulders back. These can be done using pulley weights or other devices to load the movement.

The opposite movement, as if you were doing the crawl or swimming forward, uses the muscles over the front of your chest and pulls your shoulders forward.

Keeping this principle in mind you can see that using stretch springs or anything that requires greater strength in rotating your arms backward will help keep the shoulders back.

DEAR DR. LAMB— Your column regarding the Wry Neck was of particular interest to me. My neck and mouth sometimes get in the way of things, in general, but I am reminded of an article written by a Harvey Graham in which he recounts a most "sure cure for Wry Neck as 'approved' by the English Barbers-Surgeons" under the imprimature of no less than William Clowes-cirurgeon-to-His Majesty Henry VIII as follows:

"Wry neck is due to the fixed contraction of a long muscle which arises behind the ear, sweeps down the neck and is inserted into the inner end of the collar-bone; this contraction causes the head to be perpetually bent forward and twisted to one side. The operation was simply the severing of the fixed and fibrous muscle so that the head could swing back to a more normal position."

"This operation was usually performed on the Village green to the accompaniment of clashing cymbals, which served the dual function of advertising the presence of the operator and drowning the howls of the patient. A short, sharp knife was jabbed into the neck, just above the collar-bone, and outside the fixed tendon of the affected muscle. It was swept quickly inwards, severing the contracted tendon and then withdrawn. The twisted head was restored to a normal position with sensational suddenness; a dressing of cotton and egg white was applied and the operation was over!

DEAR READER— Thank you for a good laugh. I couldn't resist sharing this little gem with my readers. It should serve to remind everyone how fortunate we all are to get the kind of medical treatment available today. It wasn't always so as your story demonstrates so vividly.

"Only occasionally were the great blood vessels, directly under the muscle, affected. This was fortunate since such an accident was almost invariably fatal."

Such a treatment does run the risk of severing the arteries and veins in the neck. It is closely akin to having your throat cut. The proper treatment of a wry neck has to be based on a careful study of the patient to determine what is causing it.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Nov. 12, the 316th day of 1975. There are 49 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1941, during World War II, Russian troops halted German invaders at the outskirts of Moscow.

On this date:
In 1812, Napoleon Bonaparte's army reached the Russian city of Smolensk in its retreat from Moscow.

In 1927, Joseph Stalin became dictator of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist Party.

In 1928, the British liner, Vestris, sank during a heavy gale off the coast of Virginia, and 110 persons drowned.

In 1937, the Japanese were moving occupation troops into Shanghai after the capture of the city, China's largest.

In 1948, a war crimes court in Japan sentenced former Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo and six other Japanese war leaders to death.

In 1964, Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg abdicated in favor of her son after a 45-year reign.

Ten years ago: The U.N. Security Council called on all nations to refuse recognition to Rhodesia after that country's unilateral declaration of independence from Britain.

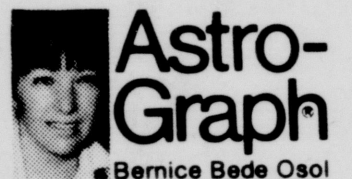

Five years ago: Military action in Vietnam was reported at its lowest ebb in nine months, with no American fatalities in two days.

One year ago: A White House spokesman conceded that the United States seemed to be moving into a recession.

Today's birthdays: Princess Grace of Monaco is 46 years old. U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun is 67. Actress Kim Hunter is 53.

Thought for today: Enough is enough, and too much spoils. — Italian proverb.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, Britain's Prime Minister, Lord North, urged King George to build up a large military force, possibly with Hessian and other mercenaries, to launch a strong military campaign against the rebellious American Colonies.

County Board chops $49,500 in long session

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

In a daylong session Wednesday which continued until after 5 p.m., one of the longest Lee County Board meetings within memory, the board made minor changes in the budget submitted by the Finance Committee and where it affects the property taxes the proposed levy was reduced by $49,500 from the suggested total.

This change came about by removing $49,500 from the appropriations for the County Records System which was included to pay part of the cost of a professional reappraisal of property in the county should the board later decide to conduct the program.

The board took the action on a motion by Donald Burke, District 3, Finance Committee member and board parliamentarian, who pointed out appropriation of funds constitutes the authority to spend.

Previous action by the board tentatively committed $150,000 of federal revenue sharing funds to partially pay for a reappraisal of property. However, designating federal sharing funds for certain purposes cannot be actually spent, according to federal established guidelines, without specific approval by the board.

Total appropriations were, including commitment of federal revenue funds, increased by $73,148. This resulted from the $49,500 reduction from the County Records System, a hike of $240 for the County Veterans Assistance, and reflects a raise in pay for William Underwood, veterans assistance officer, and $105,000 more committed from federal funds. The last amount is made up of $75,000 earmarked to finish paying for remodeling the Courthouse and $30,000 designated to pay the first year's cost of computer data processing should the board accept that system of record keeping.

The deficit in the General Funds was reduced from $17,849 to $11,121, by the actions taken during the day.

This deficit will probably be wiped out by the underestimation of interest earned by County Treasurer Sharon Thompson. The budget predicts she will turn over $65,000 to the county but last week Thompson told this reporter the amount would actually be more than $73,000.

Changes in the General Fund are reflected because of two jobs under the Comprehensive Emergency Training Act (CETA) for the county nursing home and one job slot for the county highway department and rectifying a clerical error which budgeted $4,000 too much for the County Planning Commission.

Sheriff Ray Nehring must feel like a shunned leper. During the morning session the board rejected his request for two jobs under the CETA program but during the afternoon session gave Robert Roiland, administrator of the nursing home, permission to hire two CETA applicants and County Highway Superintendent Ronald Brandau got the okay to hire one CETA employee.

CETA is a federally funded program which seeks to put people to work. To be eligible under the CETA program a person must have been unemployed for at least 15 weeks.

If a local public agency hires a CETA certified applicant the government pays all cost of employing that person until June 30, 1976. The program may be extended past that deadline but if not the hired person will either have to be fired or the employing agency must pay the salary and fringe benefit costs.

James P. Green, District 4, Tuesday was named vice chairman of the Lee County Board by Irvin Koch, District 2, board chairman, and board members unanimously concurred with the appointment.

Roiland told the board if the program ends on June 30 the two persons hired will either be relieved from duties or be reassigned to fill a regular employee opening.

He also asked and got an additional $3,774 added to the payroll budget to pay for the replacement of an employee whose salary had been paid through the Tri County Opportunity Council (TCOC).

Roiland explained the home was looking for a person to fill a job in the house-keeping department and was approached by TCOC who told about their program for training housekeepers and informed him they would pay the salary of employee if he hired the person in their program.

The nursing home administrator reported the employee, who lives in Amboy, after working for several months learned of an opening in a nursing home in her hometown and sought and got TCOC approval to change jobs.

Roiland told the board she was working in a regular job and when she left the vacancy had to be filled with an employee for whom the county paid the salary.

The board heard and had placed on file a letter from Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales, noting the probation officers had received no raises in pay and suggested "they should be treated as other county employees and be considered for salary increases."

Burke said the committee considers pay for elected and appointed officials every other year and next year the pay for these officers will be reviewed.

A discussion ensued whether probation officers were appointed or hired. Burke maintained they were unlike assistant state's attorneys who are hired by the state's attorney, but Herbert Henning, District 3, also a member of the committee, suggested Judge Bales hired the probation officers and that places them in an employee classification.

Henning urged the board to consider the judge's request.

William Kant, District 1, chairman, County Services Committee, made an impassioned plea for the board to appropriate $7,500 to the Youth Service Bureau and finished by making a motion to that effect which was lost because of not being seconded.

Kant blamed the auditing firm of Hamilton and Blaine for not notifying the YSB to forward a copy of its budget to the Finance Committee.

Dean Hamilton of the firm revealed the Finance Committee, not the auditing firm, determines what organizations are to be contacted about receiving subsidies from the county.

Kant noted YSB reports seeing hundreds of troubled young people and that the county has approved a Target House costing thousands of dollars to operate which cares for maybe three juveniles.

Henning replied the two cannot be compared. He observed operation of the target house reduces the budget for aid to dependent children.

Al Graff, executive director, Sennissippi Mental Health Center (SMHC), appeared before the board to plead for the restoration of $7,434 cut from the amount recommended for the center by the County Health Board.

He also pointed out the financing arrangement for the center over the eight years it has been in existence, noting the local share of the budget has been apportioned to the four counties it serves on a basis of population in each county.

Lee has 23 per cent of the four-county population and its share of the local funds for the center's budget was $50,850. The Finance Committee pared this down to $43,496, the amount received last year.

Graff told the board he will need to know if the county's failure to pay its "fair share" next year is a temporary condition because of the present financial condition and will be "rectified in another year." Or whether it signals a move by the county not to pay the determined share for Lee County.

If the latter is the case, Graff continued, consequences which follow may include withdrawing some services to Lee County residents or curtailing some existing programs by excluding Lee County residents.

After the board, on a motion by Lowell Beggs, District 1, chairman, Health and Welfare Committee, was defeated, Graff asked if he could have a meeting with some committee of the board to discuss the future intentions concerning financing the county's share of SMHC's local budget.

He was directed to meet with the Finance Committee.

Graff said the state pays about one-half of the center's budget and the remainder is derived from client fees and county contributions.

Whiteside County has 38.5 per cent of the population and pays $85,000; Carroll had 12 per cent and pays $28,500; Ogle had 26.5 per cent and pays $58,500, according to Graff.

Before the vote was taken Ernest Norden, District 1, chairman, Finance Committee, said, "Graff should have been invited to meet with the Finance Committee and I apologize to him for this oversight. We did not get the full story about the center's building expansion and the increase in their budget was caused by expanded services."

Arlan McClain, director of Kreider Service, followed Graff and also appealed for restoration of a cut in the county contribution to that organization. Kreider requested $22,500 and the Finance Committee cut this to $15,000.

Both of these agencies receive county funds under state law which requires a county to provide mental health service.

Irvin Koch, board chairman, District 2, decided the Executive Committee will study the adoption of computer data processing of county records after the board on a 22 to 3 vote reserved $30,000 of federal sharing funds to assist in the purchase of two buses.

Bernard Sexton, District 4, member, County Property Committee, suggested the board consider putting its insurance out for bids. "This morning we decided to get bids for refuse hauling services which cost about $600 a year and here we have budgeted more than $75,000 for insurance and do not get bids for this expenditure."

On a motion by Norden, the County Property Committee was directed to arrange to advertise for bids for county insurance and was given power to act.

The County Board took seven roll call votes. On one to approve the tax levy the vote was unanimous. On the vote to approve the amended budget only William Kant voted "no," and absent were: Allen, Fraza, Schrauth.

On whether to approve a motion made by David Gusse, District 1, that the county pay raises for individual employes shall be determined by the department heads so long as the total amount given does not exceed the appropriated amount for salary increases. YES: Smith, Topper, Balser, Beggs, Burrs, Conroy, Considine, Dunphy, Ege, Erickson, Faber, Fraza, Gusse, Hamersmith, Henning, Kant, Kesselring, Koch, Norden, Padgett, Rogers, Schrauth, Sexton, 23. Whether to earmark $30,000 of federal sharing funds for paying the first year cost of operation of a computer data processing of county records should the county adopt the system: YES: Beggs, Burke, Burrs, Conroy, Dunphy, Ege, Erickson, Faber, Gittle-son, Green, Gusse, Hamersmith, Henning, Huffman, Koch, Norden, Padgett, Rogers, Sexton, Smith, Topper, Balser, 22. Stouffer reminder on filing dates

County Clerk John Stouffer notified the County Board Tuesday that Dec. 8 is the first day and Dec. 15 the last day for filing nominating petitions to run for an office which is to be voted on in the March primary.

He suggested the possibility some person may write-in partisan candidate names in the primary vote for county board members and speculated the courts might consider the office of county board member had been voted on in that election.

Should that occur, he warned members who will run for reelection in 1976, there may be no chance to file a petition after Dec. 15.

Stouffer also noted two members of the present board, Bernard Sexton, District-4 and Michael Schrauth, District-3, were both appointed to fill vacancies and both will have to run in 1976. He also pointed out one of the two appointed members will be elected to a two-year term and suggested a method be worked out to decide who receives a four-year term and who is elected for two years.

Whether to pay the previously committed $10,990 from federal sharing funds to the Lee County Council on Aging. YES: Burrs, Conroy, Erickson, Green, Hamersmith, Henning, Huffman, Kesselring, Koch, Norden, Padgett, Rogers, Sexton, Smith, Topper, Balser, Beggs, Burke, 18. NO: Ege, Faber, Gittle-son, Gusse, Kant, 5. Absent: Allen, Considine, Dunphy, Fraza, Schrauth.

Action in Lee County Court

Burke, Dunphy motions studied

Circuit Judge James B. Vincent, Galena, took four motions under advisement and continued two other defense motions Wednesday.

The motions deal with various technicalities concerning indictments returned against Jim G. Burke, 317 Steele Ave. and Herb Dunphy, 711 Peoria Ave., accused of perjury, solicitation and unlawful observation of voting in connection with absentee ballots cast in the days prior to the April 15 city elections.

Atty. Henry Dixon, representing Burke and Dunphy, argued the indictments should be dismissed because the statute on which the charge is based was repealed Oct. 1, 1973. Dixon was referring to absentee ballot forms attached to the indictments. Each of two forms lists a section of state statute upon which authority is given for the form.

Special Assistant State's Atty. Charles Levad told the court he had no prior notice that the point would be raised and asked for time to research the issue. Levad later said the section was repealed and replaced with another number and the forms given out by the city clerk's office contained the old number.

Judge Vincent continued the hearing on the motion to dismiss based upon the repealed law and a second motion to dismiss based upon improper selection of grand jurors. The latter point is based on a list of 29 names furnished the defendants by the prosecution and indicated as a list of the grand jurors. Dixon said the grand jury under state statute, may have no more than 23 names.

Another defense motion to

(See BURKE on page 8)

Two motions denied

Circuit Judge John Rapp Jr., Mt. Carroll, denied two sections of a defense motion to dismiss an indictment brought against Alice Dempsey, 1119 W. Second St., and took under advisement a third point raised by Atty. Willard Nelson, Morrison.

Dempsey is named in a 12-count indictment returned Sept. 25, charging her with perjury, solicitation and unlawful observation of voting in connection with the absentee ballots cast in the days prior to the April 15 city election.

In his motion to dismiss, Nelson argued grand jurors were improperly selected in that a list furnished him showed 29 names when only 23 persons served on the panel. This was denied by Judge Rapp as grounds for dismissal.

A second point denied concerned the failure of the indictment to show the defendant actually did something, as argued by Nelson. He claimed certain counts of the indictment indicated his client caused something to happen and did not actually do something.

Judge Rapp took under advisement one point raised by Nelson that the indictment did not contain a list of witnesses who testified during the grand jury sessions which led to the indictment. Nelson cited case law requiring mandatory listing of names on the indictment.

Special Assistant State's Atty. Charles Levad argued a certification of grand jury witnesses furnished to Dempsey satisfied the intent of the statute. Levad added he is willing to write the names on the indictment also. Nelson maintained the indictments should be dismissed for failure to list the names.

Rapp hits at game-playing

In denying a defense motion asking depositions be entered on behalf of State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward, Circuit Judge John Rapp Jr., Mt. Carroll, called for a speedy trial and asked for an end to game playing by attorneys.

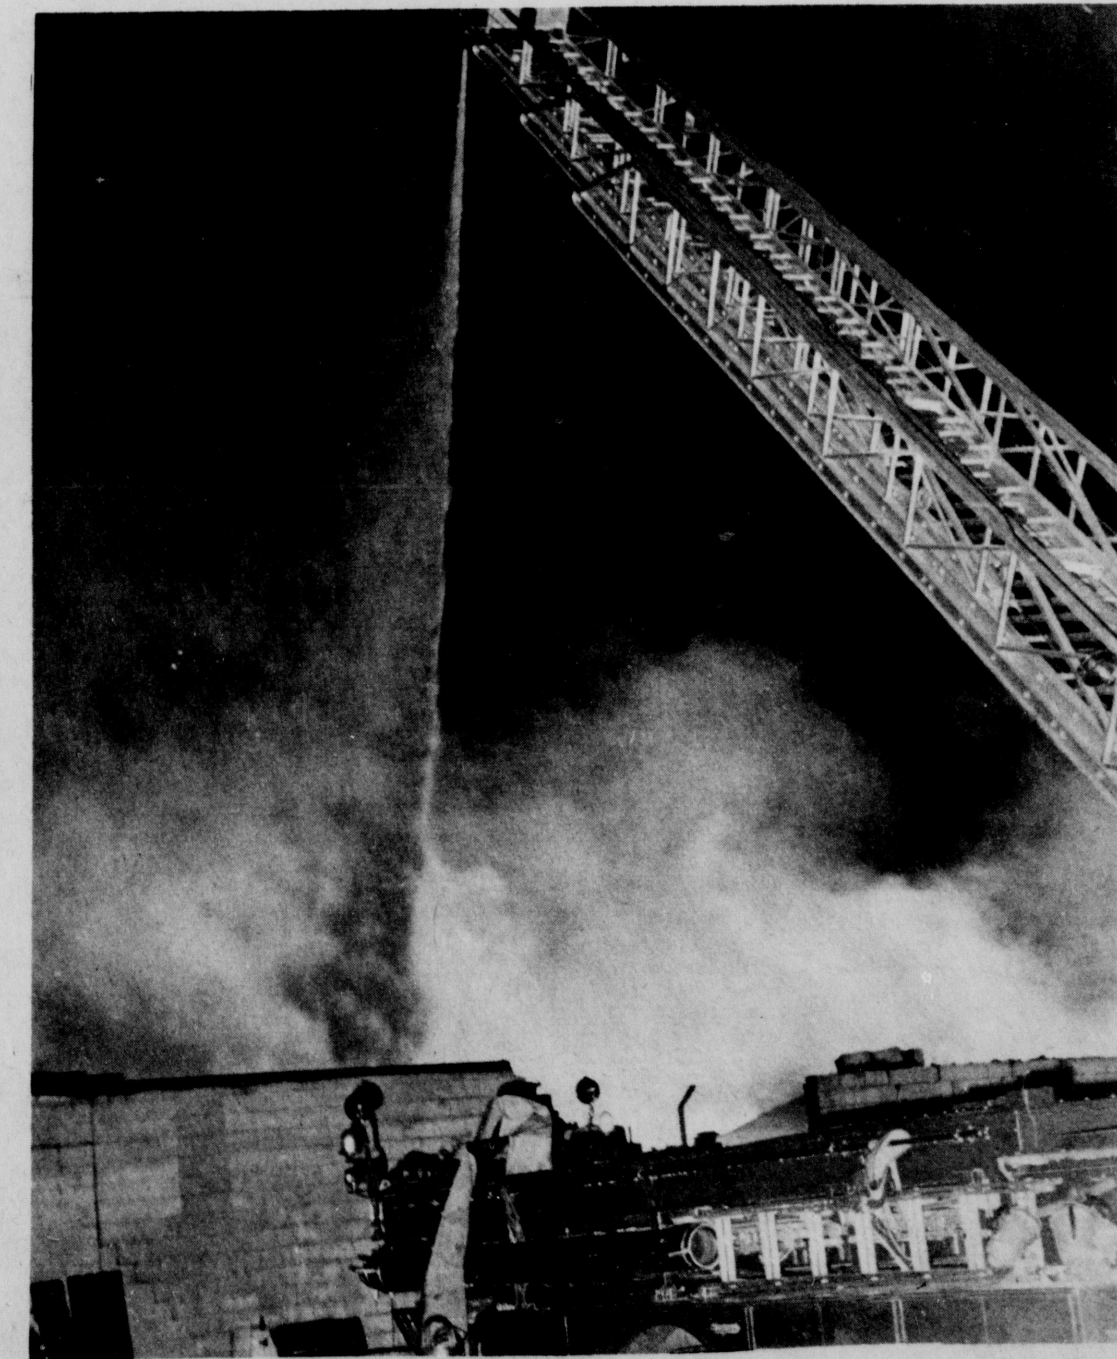

The motion was brought by Atty. Henry Dixon in connection with a petition for injunction for Ted Trulock Jr., which was filed Aug. 28.

A trial date has been scheduled for Dec. 1. The injunction seeks to have Attorney General lawyers and State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward refrain from "annoying, harrassing, bothering and threatening," Trulock, who was called to testify at various grand jury sessions which resulted in the indictment of Democratic Central Committee Chairman Jim G. Burke and two of his campaign workers, Herb Dunphy and Alice Dempsey.

The defendants have denied the allegations. Judge Rapp held Ward, who was removed as a defendant in a prior motion argued by Attorney General lawyer Jaynce Carr, and later renamed as a defendant in an amended complaint, has 20 days in which to respond to the amended complaint before deposition. It was pointed out that the 20-day time limit will not run out until Nov. 20.

Flames take Rochelle Building

ROCHELLE—A fire of undetermined origin, Wednesday night destroyed a building on U.S. 51 on the south edge of Rochelle owned by Ed Sarver, Rochelle. Rochelle fire fighters were called to the scene at 8:11 p.m. and at mid-morning were still on the scene because of smoke and visible flames from the structure.

The building is rented by Oleson Construction Co., a concrete contractor. Oleson subleased the rear part of the building to the Del Monte Company. A truck in the building along with materials from the construction company were destroyed by the blaze.

Fire officials believe the fire broke out in the rear portion of the building where cardboard boxes and pallets are stored by Del Monte. Winds from the north were beneficial as firemen were successful in preventing the blaze from spreading to a nearby mobile home park and a coin laundry and car wash owned by Rochelle Mayor Bill Cipolla.

Rochelle police were aided by state police with traffic control throughout the night. Officials estimate U.S. 51 will remain closed today and traffic will be re-routed around the fire scene.

Rochelle Fire fighters were assisted by the Ogle-Lee Fire Department in fighting the fire. Members of the Women's Auxiliary of the fire department brought coffee and sandwiches to the fire fighters at approximately 9 p.m.
